This morning I appeared on Voice of America's "Issues and Opinions" morning call-in show to discuss our new U.S.-China Working Group. The show is broadcast in Chinese live via satellite into homes throughout East Asia. I had a wonderful opportunity to speak to callers from China and hear their concerns and comments directly. That is why I am a strong supporter of the Broadcasting Board of Governors, the entity responsible for all U.S. government-sponsored, non-military, international broadcasting. Using vehicles like VOA, we can communicate in real-time with people all over the world on issues of shared interest.
